

HTML

HTML means HyperText Markup Language

HTML helps To structure your information and layout to make webpages

It Structures your unstructured data into structured data

It is not a programming language, it is a Markup language because it doesn't have data to store or memory

It also structure text, content, video, photos, music, table, etc.

HYPER – It connects one to another or it links one page to another

TEXT – Text means here information, content, written information – that displayed on webpage

MARKUP – Markup means using special tags to describe the structure and meaning of the content

LANGUAGE- language has system of rules and syntax used to communicate between Humans and Computer